School Meal Menu W/C 04.03.24 is Week 3

Measles is an unpleasant illness, and most people who catch measles become very unwell, with many people admitted to hospital. Measles can be serious, and babies and young children, pregnant women, and people with weakened immunity are at increased risk of complications such as pneumonia, ear infections and seizures. In rare cases, people infected with measles will die. In the West Midlands, half of the people who have had measles have had to be admitted to hospital.

Measles is very infectious, and spreads easily among people who are unvaccinated. Spending 15 minutes or more in direct contact with someone who has measles is enough to catch the infection. A child who has measles will infect nearly all of the unprotected children they come into contact with. This means that if an unvaccinated child spends time with someone who has measles, it is highly likely that they will catch measles.

It's really important that if you think you have symptoms of measles that you stay at home and phone your GP or NHS 111 for advice.

Although most children who live in Halton have been vaccinated against measles, there are still many children who have not had two doses of MMR vaccine and remain unprotected.

Measles is not just a childhood disease. Many adults are also at risk if they are not vaccinated, particularly pregnant women, and people with weakened immunity, are at increased risk of complications from measles.

Protect against measles with MMR vaccination

MMR vaccination is the best way to protect children and adults from measles. It is extremely effective, and has been proven to be safe - with millions of doses given in the UK. It is really important that children receive two doses of MMR vaccine to ensure that they are protected.

Children should have their first dose of MMR vaccine when they are 1 year old, and the second dose when they are 3 years and 4 months old. If you are a parent or carer please check your child's red book, or contact your GP if you are unsure whether your child has had their MMR vaccinations.

If your child has not had two doses of MMR vaccination, it is really important to contact your GP practice as soon as possible to arrange for them to be vaccinated.

Children and adults of any age can have free MMR vaccinations. If you have any questions about MMR, the nurse will be happy to answer these at your appointment before your child has the vaccine. If you are an adult who has not been vaccinated, you can also arrange this with your GP.

Measles symptoms

Measles usually starts with cold or flu symptoms, including a high temperature, a runny or blocked nose, sneezing and a cough. People may have conjunctivitis or red, sore eyes.

The measles rash usually appears a few days later. The rash starts on the face and behind the ears before spreading to the rest of the body. The spots of the measles rash are sometimes raised and may join together to form blotchy patches. Some people may also get small spots in their mouth.

If you or your child have a rash which could be measles, you must not attend work or school, and you must contact your GP as soon as possible. It is really important to phone ahead, and not just turn up at the GP practice, so that the GP can make arrangements to protect their other patients.

People with measles are infectious for four days before the rash appears, and for four days afterwards. People with measles must stay at home during this period.

Halton Family Hubs / Children's Centres survey

Halton's Family Hubs / Children's Centres support children and young people from birth until they reach the age of 19 (or up to 25 for young people with special educational needs and disabilities).

They bring council, health and community services together so that families can access the right support at the right time.

Halton's Family Hubs will provide a mix of physical and virtual spaces, as well as outreach, where families can easily access non-judgmental support for the challenges they may be facing.

All the services shown above would all fall under the family hub umbrella.

Healthwatch Halton are currently working with the Family Hubs to gather people's views on the services offered. If you are a current user of any of the services shown above, we'd like to hear your views.

If you've not yet used a Family Hub / Children's Centre, we'd like to find out some of the reasons why.

What Parents & Carers Need to Know about PERSUASIVE DESIGNONLINE

WHAT ARE THE RISKS? 'Persuasive design' refers to the techniques that companies employ to influence our thoughts and behaviours when we're on the internet. These approaches can be spotted on websites, in apps and even as part of some video games. Persuasive design means that this content has been deliberately presented in a way that's intended to encourage you to spend your time or money (or both). These methods often prove highly effective at keeping people engaged and invested for longer than we might expect.

POTENTIAL ADDICTION

In the digital world, persuasive design can make certain activities more addictive and hairler to walk away from: some people may begin to feel anxious or irritated without access to their device or their favourite app, for example, it can also often leave users feeling isolated, as – if they spend most of their time on social media – they may start to find it difficult to talk to

MENTAL HEALTH

Scrolling online or gaming without regular breaks is proven to be harmful to our mental health. The constant bombardment of news stories (many of them negative), images and influencers' posts can create sensations of unease, uncertainty and FOMO (fear of missing out). Young people can get so immersed in this environment that they become less likely to spot misloading poests.

PROLONGED SCROLLING

Social media can draw any of us regardless of age - into a continuous pattern of refreshing our screen, following posts and links down rabbit, holes or reading countless comments made by others. This aimless scrolling can eat up time which could have been spent on more productive activities. It could also lead younger users into areas of the online world which aren't age appropriate.

SENSORY OVERLOAD

Repetitively scrolling, clicking on links or playing games can create an unending stream of new information and visual stimuli. Put it this way; social media isn't exactly renowned as a carefree, chilled-out environment. Such overstimulation can become too much for young people to handle, resulting in sensory overload and causing them to feel stressed, overwheimed and exhausted.

COSTLY ADDITIONS

Video games sometimes display offers for downloadable content or loot baxes which can be bought with real money. While these 'microtransactions' temptingly promise to improve a player's gaming experience, most of the time they are money sinks. Young people in particular, excited by the chance enhancing their game, could spend quite a sizeable sum very quickly indeed.

PHYSICAL CONSEQUENCES

Hours spent sitting and scrolling means far less time moving ground and getting exercise; hardly ideal for a young person's physical health. Additionally, prolonged exposure to the light given off by a phone's screen can lead to eye latigue and discomfort, especially if viewing it in the dark. Extended phone use before bed can also impact on sleep quality, affecting mood and energy levels over the following days.

Advice for Parents & Carers

ESTABLISH LIMITS

Talk to your child about setting some time limits on how long they can use their phone, tablet or console in the evenings or at weekends – or perhaps how often they can go on a specific app, game or website. You could also decide to involve the whole family in creating this shared screen line naturement, making things fair foret healthing. The eventure of

NIX NOTIFICATIONS

Stap knee-jerk responses at the source by turning off push notifications and alerts. Whether it's a gaming notification or a social media update, these not-so-genite reminders are designed to catch our attention and lure us back to our device. Switching them off - or even deleting any particularly intrustive apps - can help prevent your child from being reeled back into the online world.

Meet Our Expert

Babacca Jennings has more than 3D years' expensive in the held of relationaries, sex and health education (90%). At well as defineding were shape and treating the young proper, parents and schools, she is

ENCOURAGE MINDFULNESS

Acknowledging any addiction is key in overcoming it – and compulsive scrolling is no different. If anything mentioned in this guide sounds familiar, it could help to have an honest, open chat with your child about how much time they spend online. Get them to think about how often they scroll through social media aimlessly or habitually open it up whenever they have a spare moment.

MAKE A CHECKLIST

Considering a list of relevant questions can be an effective way of helping children figure out why they're scrolling on certain sites or consuming particular pieces of content. A checklist can prompt young people to ask themselves if they're learning anything or benefiting from this activity or if they're wasting their time. Taking a step back can sometimes help us to see things more clearly.
